THOUSANDS VIEW WHITE INAUGURATION

NEGRO BURNED BY MOB FOR KILLING GIRL

Schoolhouse Where Assailant Murdered Missouri Teacher Made a Funeral Pyre.

CROWD, OFFICERS CLASH

Mob Victim Reported To Have Confessed Slaying Miss Velma Colter.

By The Associated Press

MARYVILLE, Mo., Jan. 12—[illegible] roof of the Garrett [illegible] school in which he was alleged to have assaulted and murdered Miss Velma Colter, 19-year-old teacher on Dec. 16, Raymond [illegible] Negro was burned to death by a mob which made a funeral pyre of the building today.

Then was marched into the [illegible] and to the spot where the [illegible] body of the young teacher was discovered. Those of the throng about him who were closest said the Negro confessed his guilt.

He was then taken to the roof of the building. He was placed [illegible] the ridge-pole. Holes were chopped in the roof and gasoline poured over the floors and on the walls. A member of the mob applied a match.

Victim Remains Calm

Gunn was calm throughout. Those close to him said he was not [illegible] during the march to the [illegible] although his clothing was [illegible] to the waist.

At least 2000 persons stood around the small school building.

The mob seized Gunn as he was [illegible] from jail to the courthouse here this morning for arraignment.

The prisoner was taken by the mob despite the fact that a detachment of Missouri National guardsmen had been placed on duty to preserve order and the sheriff's force had been augmented.

None Injured In Clash

No one was injured in the clash between the crowd and the officers so far as could be learned immediately.

Gunn was seized as he arrived at the courthouse in an automobile driven by Gabe Purcell, deputy sheriff. The leader of the mob told Purcell to stand aside.

A rope was placed about the prisoners body as the group of fifty men on foot began to march toward Miss Colter's rural school. One of his captors shouted that Gunn would be taken to school, placed within, and the building burned.

Behind the group on foot followed several hundred persons in automobiles.

No fire arms were in evidence. Spectators near the Negro when he was seized said no resistance was offered by his guards.

Two squads of National guardsmen were detailed to duty about the courthouse when the mob formed at daybreak.

Waves to Crowd

Face down across the ridge pole, Gunn pushed himself up and waved at the crowd, which contained hundreds of women. Then he sank against the roof. One long, piercing shriek arose above the crackling of the flames as they played about his head.

The crowd, orderly throughout, stood about the four corners where the school was located until the white, one-room frame building was reduced to ashes.

Trust Holy Man To Stop Onrushing Lava Flow

By The Associated Press.

BATAVIA, Java, Jan. 12 — Trusting implicitly in the ability of a holy man to stay an onrushing stream of lava, residents of a small village at the foot of Merapi, Javan volcano, refused today to leave their homes.

Authorities, fearful lest the volcano, which began a serious new eruption, might overwhelm the town at any hour, were considering forceful evacuation of the town. The holy man refused to allow the people to leave. The rush of lava was the same direction as in the eruption of a few weeks ago.

GET NO WORD OF FLIERS LOST IN OCEAN TRIP

Storm-Swept Atlantic Believed To Have Claimed Lives of Couple.

SEARCH MADE BY SHIPS

"Worst Weather in Years" Reported Along Route of Tradewind.

By The Associated Press

HORTA, ISLAND OF FAYAL, AZORES, Jan. 12—The storm-swept Atlantic was believed today to have claimed the lives of two more transoceanic fliers.

Hope for the safety of Mrs. Beryl Hart, 27-year-old widow, and Lieutenant William S. MacLaren, who left Hamilton, Bermuda, at 11:15 a. m. Saturday for Horta in their monoplane Tradewind, dimmed fast with the passing hours.

Anxious watchers here were gloomy as the hours passed with no word from the little white ship. At 1 p. m. (Azores time) it seemed impossible that the two fliers could have weathered the storms which have been sweeping the islands.

Steamers passed and put in to Horta reporting no word of the flight. One ship came in with a disabled steamer in tow, reporting "the worst weather in years" along the Tradewind's route.

The aviators with a "pay load" which they hoped to take to Paris, expected to negotiate the 2,000 miles in about 21 hours. This would have put them here at 8:15 a. m. Sunday (Marion time).

They have not been seen or heard of since the take-off. They carried no radio.

Faint Hope of Landing

The 300 gallons of gasoline which their plane carried was believed to have been sufficient to keep them until 6 p. m. yesterday. In this time they might have reached the western European or Moroccan coast, but in view of a northeast gale, poor visibility and other unfavorable weather conditions, this was considered improbable.

If forced down at sea the plane probably would not have floated for more than a few minutes. Although it was equipped for a sea-landing the giant waves seen hereabout the last three days would have crushed an even more substantial ship.

LOSS $5,000 AS FIRE DESTROYS BARBECUE

Kitchen Stove Blamed for Flames Which Swept E. J. Schneider Building.

Schneider's barbecue, three miles south of here on Delaware pike, is in ashes following a $5,000 fire early this morning. A small amount of furniture from the living quarters of the family was saved, the remaining furniture and buildings being destroyed.

Although the origin of the fire has not been learned, it is believed to have spread from a kitchen stove. When E. J. Schneider, proprietor awoke at 2.30 a. m. the barbecue was in flames. Calling neighbors, he managed to carry out some of the furniture from the living room and one of the bedrooms.

With the aid of an electric water pump, neighbors held the fire in check, and could have saved a part of the building had not the heat from the fire melted electric wires to which the pump was connected.

The barbecue has been in operation five years.

CITY HOPES FOR AID FROM LEGISLATURE

Finance Heads Look to State for Relief as Six-Month Program Planned.

Clinging to a hope that the state legislature can bring some form of financial relief to Marion and dozens of other Ohio cities hard pressed for operating funds in 1931, city officials have decided to continue the usual program of activities of the city for at least six months. Although every department will operate with the greatest economy, there will be no curtailment of city departments, no cuts in salaries, or a reduction in the number of policemen and firemen until available funds have been exhausted.

Funds for 6 Months

This appeared to be the consensus of the finance committee and other city officials following a meeting in the mayor's office Saturday afternoon when the task of lopping off $82,781 from the city's budget for the year was completed. Some divisions in the city government were not given sufficient funds to operate more than six months, when the finance committee finished the cutting and drew an appropriation ordinance to be considered by city council tonight.

Although given sufficient funds to operate their departments for only six, eight or ten month periods, department heads were given to understand that the city government would carry on just as it has been doing for the last several months.

State senators and representatives in the general assembly from this district probably will be approached by officials in an effort to bring the local financial problem with similar ones from other cities before the state legislature, officials said. Other cities have already done this, according to local officials.

Among the relief steps which may be asked from the state legislature will be to permit the use of gasoline tax money for street cleaning purposes. Should this use for gasoline tax money be authorized, between $5,000 and $8,000 more in general tax money formerly spent in street cleaning here would be available for other uses according to officials.

Income May Increase

There is a possibility that more tax money and more receipts from

CAR FACTORIES SPEED WORK

Detroit Auto Plants Recall Thousands of Employes Today.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 12—Detroit is reawakening today. The city of automobiles has been in a condition of industrial hibernation for more than a year. Factory wheels have turned only intermittently. There have been gaps in assembly lines at the numerous automobile factories.

But the go ahead signal has been given, and the ever hopeful population of this essentially youthful community believe that "things will be different now."

The Detroit street railways made preparations to transport thousands more workers to their jobs today than went to work last Monday. Most of these, of course, are of the thousands laid off Dec. 18, when the inventory period began, and most of them are going back to work on part time schedules. Nevertheless there is a more optimistic feeling that has existed for many months.

Thousands Returning

Announcement was made that 75,000 employes of the Ford River Rouge plant had been notified to begin work today. Another 32,000 Ford workers were to report at other plants in the Detroit area. Street cars were lined up to furnish transportation for 50,000 of the men recalled to the rouge plant.

Other automobile factories have issued similar calls to their workers. Dodge, Hudson, Lincoln, Buick, Cadillac and Chrysler are going into production after the annual inventory.

Chevrolet has promised 30,000 workers steady jobs through the winter.

Optimistic reports have come out of the New York automobile show, and statements of industrial lead-

COMMITTEE ACTS

House Rules Group Votes Special Status to Drouth Relief Bill

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—The house rules committee voted today to give special legislative status to the drouth relief appropriation bill so it might be sent to conference with the senate tomorrow. The committee adopted a resolution to disagree to the senate's $15,000,000 amendment for human food loans.

Under the rules of the house, the resolution cannot be brought up until tomorrow. A vote then will be taken which will show the strength of those in the house supporting the senate amendment.

Representative Garner, the minority leader, said off the floor that at least 150 members would vote for the senate amendment.

FIVE BILLS PROPOSE REPEAL OF DRY LAW

Senators Ackerman, Herner Introduce Legislation Aimed at Ohio Prohibition.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 12—Five bills proposing repeal of statutory prohibition in Ohio were introduced in the state senate today. Resolutions proposing repeal of constitutional prohibition were introduced last week in both branches.

The repeal bills were introduced by Senators Joseph N. Ackerman, of Cleveland and William H. Herner of Huron county. Last week Ackerman introduced a constitutional amendment providing for repeal.

Two of the Ackerman bills and two Herner bills are virtually identical, providing for repeal of the Crabbe prohibition law and the Miller enforcement code. The other Ackerman bill would repeal the Dow-Aikin tax law which imposes $1,000 tax on property where intoxicating liquors are sold.

Both senators would retain so much of the Crabbe law as would punish vendors of poison liquor. Ackerman would provide the death penalty for persons knowingly selling poison liquor which causes death, while Herner would make the offense second degree murder, punishable by life imprisonment.

Ackerman's fourth bill would repeal the law requiring observance of temperance day in the public schools of the state.

Last of C., D. & M. Robbers To Get Parole from Pen

Governor Cooper Commutes Ten-Year Sentence of William Shy; Eligible for Clemency March 17; T. J. Mills Included in List Acted Upon.

Sentences of two men who were convicted of crimes in Marion county today had been cummuted for parole along with 16 other prisoners. The commutation was one of the last acts of Governor Myers Y. Cooper yesterday before he prepared to turn his office over to Governor George White.

William Shy of Columbus, sentenced to 10 years from Marion county for his part in the 1926 C., D. & M. robbery, and was made eligible for parole on March 17, five years from the date he was sentenced.

T. J. Mills, sent up from Marion county on Feb. 8, 1929, on a forgery charge, had his five-year sentence cut in half, making him eligible for parole on Aug. 8.

Shy is the last of the C., D. & M. robbers now serving a sentence. James Madden, who was given a 25-year term, was paroled several years ago due to illness and Harry Duncan, who also received a 25-year sentence, died in the state penitentiary fire last April. Another of the gang, Bernard Banks, has been paroled from Mansfield reformatory. Two others, a man and a woman, were implicated in the robbery but were not sentenced.

The robbery occurred on Jan. 11, 1926, when the bandits accosted Paul Simpson and Newell Minard, C., D. & M. employes, on the stairway of the company's former offices in the Eagle building. The employes were carrying $2,500 of the company's money to a bank at the time. One of the gang threw blue vitriol into the eyes of the messengers and during the confusion the men escaped with the money.

Escape To Columbus

They escaped in two machines to Columbus, where they were later arrested on a "tip" from a man whom they had asked to assist them in the robbery. All four were convicted by Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiedemann.

Alexander Moore, former mayor of Athens and a Republican candidate for the nomination as lieutenant governor in 1928, was another whose sentence was commuted, effective immediately by the governor. He was admitted to the penitentiary in May, 1929, to serve two and one-half years for embezzling city funds.

Cooking

WHO started this eating business anyway? Authorities claim that what Bacon was to philosophy, Dante or Petrarch to poetry, Copernicus or Galileo to astronomy, Gonthier was in France to gastronomy. It is said that he invented in less than 10 years, nine ragouts, 31 sauces and 21 soups. But it was Catherine de Medici, so they say, who kept the pot boiling. She crossed the Alps to marry Henry II accompanied by a troop of painters and poets, perfumers and astrologers and cooks. A meal to this lady was time to concoct something subtle and business like such as massacres, but it was her son who went in for it in a big way. He is said to have possessed an excellent appetite, was a lover of good cheer, spent whole days at the table and had a kitchen of such brilliant splendor that present day culinary mistresses would turn green with envy.

Works Two Ways

AFTER the holiday orgy of eating the dieting business comes to the fore in great force. Candy gets the go by and it amounts to almost an insult to suggest a full noonday meal. The proposition works two ways though for along with reducing the lunch check it adds to the fund set aside for the payment of those Christmas bills which look about nine times as big on the statement as they did on the price tag.

Dreams

THE clever stunt of a very up and coming club raised the wonder with us of just how many folks were doing what they had always hoped they would. Of course if one realized all the ambitions they nursed throughout their teen years they would have to have as many lives as a cat to get it all done. For instance there was the plump little black-haired girl who was the envy of a whole dozen of saucer-eyed little girls as she swung perilously from the trapeze in the center of the medicine show tent, the top of which looked to be at least as high as the elevator cupola. Well, everyone of those dozen dazzled damsels saw themselves performing before the crowned heads of the universe to say nothing of suspending the breaths of millions of the hoi polloi. Then there was the frump that played opposite your first hero in the stock company, she probably was a million dollar beauty but you certainly were going to go her one better. Maybe YOU had visions of yourself and your retinue of servants touring abroad as a second Florence Nightingale, or an erstwhile oracle to whose door the world would beat a pathway, or perhaps a scholar to whom the learned of the world paid homage. Be that as it may, it's time this column was where all good news goes, but if you're interested instead of reading this you might be buying your hats of Madomaselle Olga, exclusive hats and gowns.

Helen Lang Says It's The Best Way To Stay Young Looking

Helen Lang Says It's The Best Way To Stay Young Looking

"What shall I do, my hair is getting gray?" I recommend only one preparation and I've tried them all. It's an improved formula made from that wonderful old recipe of sage tea and sulphur. It is easy to use. Gray disappears overnight. And after two or three applications hair is restored to the exact shade you want, so evenly, so naturally, nobody'll ever know. Just pay your druggist 75c for a large bottle of Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur and follow the simple directions.—Adv.

Mrs. Harder To Attend Club Board Meeting at Capital

MRS. W. N. HARDER of 434 East Church street, national chairman of the fine arts department of the General Federation of Women's clubs left yesterday for Washington where she will attend the annual mid-winter meeting of the board of directors of the general federation which opens Tuesday. She plans to remain in Washington for the conference on the cause and cure of war which follows immediately after the mid-winter session of the board and which will be held under the direction of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt. Mrs. Harder will be one of 100 delegates from the general federation to attend the conference. Mrs. John F. Sippel will preside for the federation meeting.

The unemployment problem, the White House conference on Child Health and Protection and Inter-American relationships will be discussed by experts during the conference and there will be a trip to the United States Naval academy at Annapolis. During their stay the women will be received by President and Mrs. Hoover.

Members of congress and their wives and other members of the official and social life of the nation's capital will be received at a large reception to be given the evening of the opening day at Federation headquarters, one of the historically interesting mansions of Washington, having once been the home of General Nelson A. Miles and at different times having housed various foreign legations.

Senor Manuel Freyre, ambassador extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary from Peru, will discuss "The Value of a Close Inter-American Spiritual Understanding." Dr. James S. Plant, director of the Essex County Child Guidance Clinic of Newark, N. J., will speak on "Findings and the Significance of the White House Conference on Child Health and Protection," and Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth, head of the woman's division of President Hoover's Emergency committee for employment, will tell of the remarkable response she has had from club women and present ways of aiding in solving this problem.

The business sessions of the board will begin Wednesday morning and will continue over Friday with three sessions a day. The morning and afternoon sessions will be devoted to routine business and the evening sessions will be given over to outside speakers. The regular board sessions will be preceded and followed by smaller gatherings, including meetings of the executive committee, the board of trustees, conferences of directors, presidents and department chairmen.

CLASS ENTERTAINS GUESTS

Mrs. William Lambie and son Robert and Miss Janice Ann Corbin were guests of the True Blue class of First Reformed church at a meeting Friday night with Miss Florence Jones of West Columbia street. In a business meeting a public supper was decided upon, to be given Jan. 29. Honors in contests were awarded Miss Thelma Ringle and Miss Esther Underhill. Lunch was served by the hostess.

Don't Go Around Feeling Half Sick

There's no excuse for letting yourself get run down. No reason why you shouldn't be 100 per cent fit. The man or woman who feels tired and sickly most of the time won't ever get along in business or social life.

The way to keep fit, doctors tell us, is to take cod liver oil.

But don't try to take cod liver oil the old-fashioned liquid way. Don't overload your stomach with a lot of fatty nasty-tasting oil. Take it the modern way—in tiny tasteless tablets.

These tablets, called McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, are made from the vitamins of purest Norwegian cod liver oil. All the healthful benefits of the oil are in these tablets. Doctors now prescribe them. The Good Housekeeping Institute has tested and approved them.

All you need to do to get the vitamins your run-down system needs is to ask your druggist for a box of McCoy's. Go to him and get your box today, 60 tablets—60 cents.—Adv.

KNOCK THAT COLD IN A JIFFY

Here's Relief Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in the head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meat, Grain, Livestock

Egg prices, which have been abnormally low during the entire winter season, witnessed another two-cent drop this morning which reduced retail prices to a range of 27 to 31 cents a dozen.

The cut in prices is a result of an oversupply Saturday which flooded the market with eggs. Wholsale prices covered a wide range and were the lowest in months.

Still further cuts will be made during the week unless the supply decreases to normal

Fruit and vegetable prices were unchanged today. Grocers were receiving new shipments of produce to fill shelves emptied by heavy Saturday trading

VICTIM OF ROBBER REPORTED IMPROVED

Marion Girl Recovers from Blow on Head with Hammer.

Condition of Miss Helen Grubaugh, 25, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Frank Grubaugh of 579 West Columbia street, who was attacked by an unknown assailant last Friday night at Delaware, was reported improved today

Miss Grubaugh is confined to Jane Case hospital at Delaware, where she has been employed for the last five months as a nurse She was struck on the head Friday night while driving her machine, in the vicinity of the hospital

Her assailant evidently had hidden in the rear seat and had struck Miss Grubaugh with a hammer at the base of the skull just after she had left the hospital on her way downtown. The collar of her fur coat, which was pulled up around her head is believed to have softened the blow and to have saved the girl's life

Miss Grubaugh was knocked unconscious by the blow and did not regain consciousness until Saturday morning She remembers nothing of the attack which indicates that the presence in the car of the assailant was unknown to the girl.

While she was unconscious for several hours, the girl did not suffer a fracture of the skull nor was there a slight concussion of the brain as feared at first.

VALUES HIGHER AFTER SHIFT

Dealing Fairly Active as Corn Brokers Get Largest Pit.

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO Jan 12—Moderately active dealing both in corn and wheat early today accompanied a shift which transferred corn brokers to the largest trading pit available Wheat business went into smaller quarters, the corn crowd being about twice as large as that in wheat.

All grains averaged higher, corn influenced by less favorable weather, wheat by the amount on ocean passage being reduced to nearly the lowest on record. Corn started ¼c off to ¼c up, and subsequently scored a general advance. Wheat opened unchanged to 1c higher, and then reacted.

TO PLAY IN PARADE

BUCYRUS, Jan. 12—Participating in the inaugural parade at Columbus today is the local high school band of 60 pieces whose appearance was arranged by Mayor Arthur Schuler, chairman of the White inaugural committee in this county.

History Repeats Itself

'The Little Game of Gasoline'

"Forewarned by advance notices of the new station's plans [illegible] five independent dealers in Pure Oil Company's gas this morning cut their prices to 14c. This action was taken by the dealers personally and the Pure Oil Company has taken no part in this price slashing - Marion Star, July 12, 1928."

"The rules for playing this 'little game of gasoline' vary in different cities. The object, of course is always the same, that is to eliminate the player who will not maintain prices.

"First an independently (?) owned company will cut the price below our price. We are supposed then to cut our price below theirs, which would mean that we would lose money and soon be forced out of business while they would make up their losses by excessive prices in other parts of the state.

"Now watch what happens.

"We refuse to enter into a price war, or to be brutally frank, we will not play the game with a fixed deck. The next move will probably be for some more important independent stations to cut below our prices.

"'What?' say the big boys. 'Gas being sold in Marion for 14c. We will have to meet competition.' So down go the big boys to 14c.

"It's a nice game and has been frequently played, always with the motorists on the losing side.

"To understand this game you should know that the public and state officials do not look with favor on big companies selling gasoline below the price of an independent dealer in one city while charging higher prices in other sections of the state.

"We are sorry——

"If, through lack of vision, others have a set up which is inefficient and top-heavy with overhead, making it necessary for them to charge an excessive price for a commodity that has become a necessity and which has added so much to the welfare of all classes of society.

"We sell direct from tank cars to consumers, eliminating the cost of numerous expensive stations, tank wagon service, etc, and because of our large volume are satisfied with a very small margin of profit."

Michigan has a law that prevents merchandise being sold in one part of the state at lower prices than in other parts of the state.

Indiana has a law that protects dealers from price wars conducted to destroy competition.

But in Ohio an Independent dealer in any line of merchandise has no protection against price wars conducted for the purpose of destroying competition by large corporations doing a state-wide business.

This station will not enter price wars.

It is entirely up to the motoring public.

Will you help to maintain this station, which has made low prices possible by a new method of doing business?

Or will you for a small gain bet against a one card draw and get beautifully sandbagged?

POLICE SEEK 2 HOLDUP MEN

Special to The Star.

KENTON Jan 12 Officials Monday were without major clues in the robbery of the South Main Street Kroger store here late Saturday night when two armed bandits made off without about $200 after herding three clerks and 11 customers in the rear of the store.

It was one of the most daring robberies reported in the uptown district here in years and one of the first store "stick-ups" in the city's history.

During the evening's rush in the store and while clerks were busy, two armed men, one of them using his coat as a mask appeared in the front door and a second later the masked member of the duet stuck a gun into the ribs of Richard Watkins, youthful clerk, and ordered him to stick 'em up and move on back toward the rear of the store

Mrs Guy Croy, wife of the store manager, and Elinor Croy a daughter both clerking in the store were likewise ordered to the rear of the store along with the customers and ordered to remain quiet.

While covering the people with his revolver the masked man scooped the money out of the cash register. His companion stood guard at the door. On leaving the two men ordered their victims to "keep still" and ran a half block south from the store and jumped into an automobile believed operated by a confederate.

Officials believe from information obtained that a fourth member of the bandit gang stood watch on the outside and disappeared in the car Before officials could be summoned the car had disappeared

The holdup took place while G R. Croy, manager of the store, was engaged in delivering an order of groceries on the outside of the store. Watkins told officials that he recognized one of the bandits as the man who a few moments before had been in the store and purchased two packages of cigarets. The clerks stated they could easily recognize the robbers, who appeared rather young and shabbily dressed.

No reduction is being made at this time in tubes and in tires for trucks and busses, it was reported.

EVANGELICAL BISHOP IS SPEAKER HERE

Bishop George E. Epp of Cleveland, head of the northwest district of the Evangelical church, addressed 1,100 persons in the morning and night services at Calvary Evangelical church yesterday, on the missionary activities of the Evangelical church around the world.

"What the Orient needs is a renunciation of its idols and a dedication to Christ and the leadership along Christian lines that it now has in commerce and in politics," he said in his morning sermon, "Oriental Thrills." His text was from the 135 Psalm, regarding idols of gold and silver."

His address in part follows

"China is a land of idols. It is a marvious country in itself, great in natural resources. The Chinese race is a great race, number approximately one-fourth of the population of the world. There are those who have studied the political status of China and say there is no hope for China, they have no leadership, no organization, no government. But others, in the light of Calvary's cross, look out on China and see it as the dawn bringing a more glorious, better and freer day.

"The first glimpse of China shows the terrible poverty that exists People in small boats like tubs come down to the ships, begging and eat the garbage the cooks thrown out to them."

In the afternoon Bishop Epp addressed a mass meeting At night he gave an illustrated lecture, "Around the World with Evangelicals" Theer were about 300 at the morning services and 800 at the service Sunday night

PUBLIC TO RECEIVE DROUTH AID APPEAL

President Approves Proposal To Make Request for $10,000,000.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—President Hoover will issue a proclamation shortly calling upon the people of the country to contribute $10,000,000 through the Red Cross to relief of the needy in rural sections.

The chief executive, as held of the Red Cross, yesterday approved the proposal of Chairman Payne that an appeal for public assistance be made There was some expectation today that this action would ease the tense situation in congress, where for a week members have clamored for and against a $15,000,000 appropriation for food loans to drouth sufferers

Mr. Hoover made known his approval of the Red Cross funds campaign in a letter to Chairman Payne. In it he pointed out it had been anticipated that the $5,000,000 the Red Cross had available in the fall might prove insufficient to carry the burden of personal relief throughout the drouth states.

PATROLMAN FAINTS, HEAD HURT IN FALL

R. B. Wayland of 217 East Center street, a patrolman in the city police department, is in City hospital today recovering from injuries sustained Saturday night when he fell in front of the Jim Dugan clothing store. He injured his head.

He was waiting to accompany an employe of the store to place the Saturday night receipts in a night depository of a local bank. While waiting in the store, he remarked that he would step outside to "get a little fresh air." He remembers stepping out from the store but immediately fainted.

Wayland is a World war veteran and was gassed while in the service. It is believed that the effects of the gas and a recent attack of influenza contributed to a dizziness that caused his fall.

His condition is not regarded as serious. He probably will be removed to his home some time today. He was removed to the hospital in the C. E. Curtis ambulance.

JEWISH BENEFACTOR SUCCUMBS IN SLEEP

Nathan Straus Dies in Eighty-Third Year; Noted for Relief Work.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 Nathan Straus, patriarch of American Jewry and the benefactor of little children the world over, died in his eighty-third year.

After the death of his wife, Mrs. Lina Gutherz Straus, ten months ago, his health sank rapidly and he had been restricted to a wheel chair since his return from Europe last year.

For his philanthropies in the conservation of infant life, the establishment of a Jewish homeland and the relief work of the World war, the name of Nathan Straus was revered wherever mankind suffered.

Born in Rhenish, Bavaria, on Jan. 31, 1848, Nathan Straus was brought to America as a boy of 14 by his father, Lazarus and settled in Talbottom, Ga. When the Civil war ruined his father's business, the family moved to New York and the elder Straus and his two sons, started the crockery business of L. Straus & Sons.

From the beginning the brothers forged a brilliant business partnership that lasted until Isidor Straus was lost in the sinking of the Titanic, in 1912. He contributed thousands of dollars and raised millions more for reconstruction work among the Jews of Palestine; and said always his ambition was "to die a poor man."

The funeral will be held at Temple Emanu-el.

Before it Weakens Him to the Danger Point!

Never take a child's cough lightly. You can't tell where it will end. Many a serious sickness has started with "just a cough." For a cough is not only distressing, but weakening as well. At the first sign of a cough or chest soreness in old or young, always gives good dependable old "Piso's for Coughs."

Piso's does the five things necessary to stop a cough and repair the damage done. It checks the cough spasm, loosens the mucus, opens the air passages, soothes the inflamed tissues, and at the same time has a tonic value that tends to build up what the cough tears down. Only Piso's supplies these five vital effects and it contains no opiates and does not upset the stomach. Safe to give, even to babies. All druggists sell Piso's in 35c and 60c sizes. THEATER NEWS AND REVIEWS

GAYNOR, FARRELL TEAM UP AGAIN TO MAKE YOUTH PLAY.

"The Man Who Came Back" to Show at Palace.

BY HALLIE HOUCK

AFTER more than a year's separation as a Hollywood screen "team," Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell are together again in "The Man Who Came Back," the picture to be shown at the Palace Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Janet's differences with the studio have all been cleared up and everything is "Sunny Side Up."

What is the proper allowance for a boy at college?

The story moves on from that handicap through all the experiences which a wealthy boy with no parental restrictions would encounter until he meets the girl of his dreams, who could be no one else except Janet Gaynor. The story in full sounds good to us.

Shanghai, long known as the "port of missing men," and as one of the most colorful cities in the world "where anything can happen—and has," supplies one of the principal settings for the production.

What makes for popularity? In the case of Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell it is their personification of youthful romance that makes them one of the most popular pairs of screen sweethearts. They possess the power to make us see our own idealized romances reflected in themselves.

MARION DAVIES IN LIGHT COMEDY

A light little comedy is "The Bachelor Father," continuing at the Marion tonight and Tuesday, with Marion Davies in the starring role.

The plot concerns the difficulties of C. Aubrey Smith, an English lord, in managing his three children he has collected from as many mothers, one from Italy, another from Ireland, and Marion from New York. Marion wins his heart and that of his attorney Ralph Forbes. It develops that she is not really his daughter and both Smith and Forbes are outraged at the imposter. Heartbroken, she leaves to attempt a transoceanic flight.

The two men, who discover that they love her, see her take off. The plane is wrecked before she has gone any distance, and in the reunion of the three everything ends happily. Just light comedy, but entertaining.

• • •

If you like your pictures big and mighty, unhampered by drawing room sequences and English accents by all means revel in "Moby Dick," at the Ohio tonight and Tuesday. John Barrymore is magnificent, Joan Bennett is lovely, and the story is told with such realism that you forget the technicalities of the moving picture in watching the story unfold.

GAYNOR-FARRELL

Barrymore and his brother Lloyd Hughes both love Joan, a minister's daughter and she loves Barrymore. Her refusal to marry Hughes leads him to lie to Barrymore about Joan's love for him when he returns from a whaling expedition in which he lost a leg in a fight with Moby Dick.

With Joan no longer loving him Barrymore becomes obsessed with a hatred for Moby Dick, the beast that caused her to turn from him. He sails the seven seas, always madly hunting the great white whale. The scenes of the capture of Moby Dick are thrilling. Of course Barrymore finds out that his brother lied to him in bringing Joan's message, and the story ends as all good stories should.

You'll enjoy "Moby Dick."

"THE BLUE ANGEL," ONE OF 10 BEST OF YEAR, HERE TODAY

Emil Jannings and Marlene Deitrich Play Leading Roles.

THE BLUE ANGEL, showing at the Palace tonight for the last times, will arouse comment. The picture was named on several lists of 10 best pictures for 1930. A brown taste is left after seeing this tragedy of a German professor's love affair. Decidedly not for children.

Jannings and Marlene Deitrich were the only two familiar actors in the picture, a German-made production. Jannings gives a superb role.

Jannings' acting carried along the story yesterday, with no assistance from dialogue. In only a few scenes could the conversation be understood.

The picture tells the story of an old German professor's love for an English singer in the Blue Angel cafe, a waterfront resort in a German city. He meets her in trying to lead to righteousness several of his pupils who have met her. Their life together after he marries her is one of degradation for him and is climaxed when the traveling troupe of which she is a member goes back to his old home to play an engagement. He has become a buffoon and his old friends yell in glee to see him the target of all the jokes. Enraged at seeing Marlene in the arms of a former lover he rushes from the cafe and to his old school room and in the chair from which he once instructed his classes, dies of a broken heart.

There is no humor to relieve the story, but the thing to do is see the picture and make your own decision as to whether it is one of the 10 best of the 1930 season. H. H.

About "Seconds" in Rugs—

When a rug is called a "second" it means that it is not perfect in every respect—there is something wrong with it, somewhere.

The defect in a "second" may be a slight one. Often it is hidden and is a harmless one. Such rugs are often almost as good as new, BUT they are NOT new, and should not be called new.

In other rugs the defects are quite noticeable and serious.

It does not injure a store's reputation to sell "Seconds" PROVIDING the buying public is informed, through advertising and by salesmen, that THEY ARE "seconds." At Schaffner's you are always told whether a rug is new or a second.

The showing is fine now—and remember that you can get any rug you want. Your credit is good.

For Tuesday, Jan. 13

ACCORDING to the very propitious influence of Jupiter, the Major Benefic among the planets, this should be a day of great gain and advancement, despite some omens of a sudden and disruptive change, and some trivial annoyance through the signing of papers or through letters. Employment shows signs of preferment or honors, a position fortified by Jupiter's strong promise of financial benefit and fulfilled ambitions. Real estate and elders should bring benefits, as should business deals with women.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of progress and prosperity, despite an unforeseen and unwelcome change or journey. Promotion favors, honors and substantial increase of finances are presaged, and also gains through property, labor or elderly persons and institutions. A child born on this day should be splendidly equipped for success and advancement in life, through its own ambitions and hard works as well as through benefits from others

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

CITY HOPES FOR AID FROM LEGISLATURE

Finance Heads Look to State for Relief as Six-Month Program Planned.

city departments than is now expected will be taken in during the year. Should any additional funds come in from these sources, they could be appropriated to the department needing them most. Officials hope that the departments in which cuts were made will be restored by later appropriations.

When the finance committee sat down to prepare an appropriation ordinance last week, they faced the task of reducing a $372,981 budget to $290,200, the estimated revenue available for 1931. The $82,781 difference was taken off by the following cuts.

For street lighting purposes, the committee allowed $20,000, although the street lighting bill for the year plus past due light bills amounted to $44,951.10. Light bills amounting to $8,187.97 carried over from 1930 are included in the total amount needed.

The committee cut the hydrant rental fund in half. Where $25,092 was needed for hydrants during 1931 the committee allowed $12,600, leaving that fund $12,492 short.

Police and fire department salaries were cut $7,500 each. The police payroll was reduced from $32,040 to $25,540, while the fire department payroll of $59,730 was cut to $52,230.

Payroll Cut

Payroll of the garbage collection department was cut $7,000, being reduced from $22,000 to $15,000. The fund for clerk hire and bailiff in the municipal court was cut $1,000 or reduced from $4,200 to $3,200. The fund from which hospital employes obtain their salaries took a $5,000 cut, from $25,200 to $20,200.

These reductions represent $65,443 of the total cuts made. Smaller cuts made in practically every department accounted for another $17,338 of the shortage. Included in the smaller cuts are a number of small reductions in the hospital fund aggregating $6,950. A recent ruling of the attorney general permitting certain types of street repair with gasoline tax money made it possible to cut off $3,800 in tax money formerly spent for this repair work. Small reductions made within the fire department, other than in salaries, amounted to $1,250. Similar cuts aggregating $1,040 were made in the police department.

The health department funds were reduced by approximately $1,000, along with other cuts.

As a result of the present financial problem, the engineering force within the service department may be reduced, officials said. One man may be dropped from the payroll.

The $290,200 available from taxes, receipts from the garbage collection department, municipal court, city hospital and other sources of city funds available for appropriation is $36,553 less than the $326,753 total of the original appropriations made for 1930, officials say. The city needs 28 per cent more than the amount available to cover the city operating expenses for a full 12 month period.

Inauguration Sidelights

By International News Service.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 12—Seemingly unconcerned over the inauguration excitement, Miss Mary White and her sister Charlotte chattered freely with newspapermen. Miss Mary revealed that the chief diversion of herself and her sister since moving into the governor's mansion has been billiards and pingpong.

• • •

"We're going to persuade father to install a radio in the mansion," the chief executive's daughters confided to reporters. The mansion has no radio now.

• • •

Governor Myers Y. Cooper received Mr. White in his private offices about an hour preceding the inaguration ceremonies. Taking the governor-elect by the arm, Mr. Cooper introduced him to Edward Schorr of Cincinnati, state director of commerce in the Cooper cabinet and other noted officials and dignitaries. Others present included former Governor James M. Cox, president George W. Rightmire of Ohio State university, and a number of prominent Democrats from all parts of the state.

• • •

Governor Cooper's statement to Mr. White in presenting the commission of the office to the chief executive, was: "In accordance with a custom long established, as the retiring governor of the state of Ohio I present to you your commission as governor of Ohio. In meeting the great responsibilities of your office, you have my very best wishes."

Former Employes First

All announcements by automobile manufacturers have stated that only former employes will be considered for positions, and unemployed men of other cities have been warned not to come to Detroit seeking jobs, but the upturn in the automobile industry will mean improved conditions in the steel, glass and all lines in cities from which materials which go into cars are drawn.

SENATE CONFIRMS TARIFF APPOINTEES

Threatened Strife Fails To Develop; Power Board Tilt at Standstill.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—The senate today confirmed without a record vote the nomination of Henry V. Fletcher of Pennsylvania, as chairman of the reorganized tariff commission. Five other nominees remained to be considered.

The nomination of Thomas W. Page, of Virginia, as a Democratic member was confirmed next without opposition. Page is a former member of the Taft and Wilson tariff commissions.

John Lee Coulter, Republican of North Dakota, then was confirmed without opposition. Alfred P. Dennis, Democratic appointee from Maryland, was confirmed next. A contest had been predicted against Dennis, Fletcher and Edgar B. Brossard of Utah.

Meanwhile the senate campaign against three members of the power commission was temporarily at least, at a stand-still. The commission was functioning strengthened by the President's declaration that the members held office constitutionally, regardless of the fact that the names of three commissioners were on the senate calendar as unconfirmed nominees.

Walsh Not Hopeful

Senator Walsh, Democrat of Montana, who led the successful effort to have the senate vote reconsideration of approval given Chairman Smith and commissioners Garsaud and Draper, said he saw no way of halting the commission from functioning since the President had refused to return their nominations.

The commission itself had before it for decision in the near future the question of reemploying the officers whose dismissal brought on the senate storm. Solicitor Charles A. Russell and Chief Accountant William V. King were invited, together with all other employes of the old commission, to submit applications for their former positions. At the time the invitation was issued, however, there were indications it was a formality.

THOUSANDS VIEW WHITE INAUGURAL

Hear Ohio's New Governor Give Pledge of "Rule for All."

E. B. Townsend of the First Presbyterian church of Marietta and the Democratic glee club of Columbus, sang. Following administration of the oath, Mr. White delivered his short inaugural address which took about 15 minutes. Benediction was said by Rev. A. W. Schilling of St. Charles Borromeo college, Columbus. The ceremonies were ended by the playing of "Hail to the Chief," by the 112th regiment band.

Retiring from the ceremonial stand, Governor White was escorted to the executive office, which was banked high with floral tributes from friends and civil organizations.

From the executive office, the new governor then was escorted to the head of the military and civic parade which followed. He left the parade at the Broad street entrance to the capitol, and taking a position in the stands that had been erected there watched the various military and civic units pass in review.

Leading the parade as an escort of honor was Company A, 166th regiment, Ohio National guard, from Marietta, the governor's home.

Other military units included a battalion of infantry and band from the federal barracks, Fort Hayes, various National Guard units, the Cleveland Grays, Pershing Rifles from Ohio State university, and the Ohio naval militia. In the civic organizations were delegations from many cities, including 500 citizens from Marietta.

In the afternoon the governor and his cabinet were to hold a reception in the rotunda of the capitol for members of the legislature and the public. The only night function will be a press smoker.

WARNING SOUNDED FOR LEGISLATURE

Shall Ask for and Expect Co-operation, White Says.

submitted to the people for the exercise of their solemn right of referendum, unless such legislation as may be enacted affords reasonable satisfaction to all concerned."

Governor White stated that he would abide by his previously-made pledges "that in any new system of taxation, the burdens of those who for so long a time have paid more than their just share, namely, the farmer and the home owner, shall not be increased."

"I have further pledged that no new imposts shall be levied on our wage and salary earners until the effort is made honestly to bring out from hiding those billions in intangible property heretofore escaping scot free and requiring their owners to pay their just and reasonable share of taxes," Mr. White said.

Pointing to the Ohio penitentiary disaster of last year as the "gaunt, stark tragedy that has caused us almost to hang our heads in shame," the governor declared that the welfare problem of the state must be faced and a right solution found immediately.

"The task is a large one, he said, "made all the more so by our years of seeming indifference and neglect. The solution of the problem by means of temporary makeshifts to tide over the crisis during the period of our own immediate generation will not do. We owe it to posterity that such measures as we take shall have in mind the needs of future generations."

With regard to state finances, Mr. White pointed to the warning just given by the chief fiscal officer of reduced revenues which may be anticipated for the state treasury during the next two years.

"We stand pledged to economy in the expenditures for administrative cost of the state government," he declared.

It was at this point that the governor directed his warning to the state legislators with the statement that "I shall ask for and expect to receive legislative cooperation."

"The specific duties imposed by the constitution and laws upon the governor, both affirmative and negative," he said, "must be carried out, as the one in whom the supreme executive power of the state is vested it is the duty of the governor to see to it that others vested with executive authority carry out the specific mandates of the constitution and laws."

The year in retrospect the governor said, "has been a most trying one." He pointed to the effects of the drouth "still uneradicated" and also to the general economic situation "still in a sad state of maladjustment" and the suffering due to nationwide unemployment.

"We find ourselves fighting with our backs to the wall," he said.

"Whatever the cause and whatever the justification or blame for conditions which exist, the active aid and assistance of all will be required in their righting. As your governor I pledge that I shall to the extent of my ability do my part. I ask that you as citizens do yours."

The New York State Chamber of Congress has urged congress to enact legislation for the compulsory registration and finger printing of all aliens. So far as the registration of aliens goes, the plan, as we have long held, is to be commended, but as much may not be said for finger-printing. If alien criminals are apprehended they should be deported. It would be something of an outrage to fingerprint the decent, law-biding foreigners who are within our borders.

Mind, Heart and Hand.

Welby Morgan, twenty-eight-year-old nozzleman, is credited with having saved the lives of the twenty miners who were rescued from the Camp Mitchell tunnel of the San Francisco water department's Hetch Hetchy product late Saurday after having been entombed twenty-two hours.

Young Morgan was working about fifty feet away from the twenty when he heard the crashing of the timbers which presaged the cave-in. He started to run, but, realizing that his fellow-workmen would be unable to pass the point where the timbers were crumbling in time, he turned back and dragged a long four-inch pipe under the tottering timbers just before they fell and the earth and rock crumbled over them.

Happily his eye was good. The pipe thus placed by him extended slightly beyond the inner end of the cave-in, and through it the men were able to get air and emergency supplies of food and water. When the debris had been dug away, the men were found hungry and thirsty, but otherwise little worse off for their experience.

It's a pleasure to pay tribute to bravery such as displayed by young Morgan, but no greater than the pleasure to be had in paying tribute to his quickness of mind and his physical reaction to it. It's a rare combination—courage and quickwittedness such as he displayed.

The President Goes to the People.

Refusing the demand of the senate that he return to it for reconsideration the nominations of the three members of the federal power commission confirmed by it December 20, President Hoover has carried the attempt of the senate to dictate executive nominations directly to the people of the United States.

Lashing the senate for this latest manifestation of its ever-present desire to encroach upon the rights of the executive branch of the government, Mr. Hoover refutes as false the charge of the senate coalitionists that he, the Republican party and the three commissioners are "on the side of the power trust." "I can not allow a false issue to be placed before the country," is the way he put it in his statement to the country. "There is no issue for or against power companies." He closed it with this cutting paragraph.

"I regret that the government should be absorbed upon such questions as the action of the power commission in employment or non-employment of two subordinate officials at a time when the condition of the country requires every constructive energy."

Of course, the President knows, as the country knows, that he is the real target of this fight of the senate radicals, who style themselves progressives, and the Democrats lined up with them, their hope being to build up the "power" issue for use in the 1932 presidential campaign. He makes this plain by saying that the resolutions demand the return of the nominations may "contain a hope of symbolizing me as the defender of power interests if I refuse to sacrifice three outstanding public servants, or to allow the senate to dictate to an administrative board the appointment of its subordinates, and if I refuse to allow fundamental encroachment by the senate upon the constitutional independence of the executive. Upon these things the people will pass unerring judgment.

"Much of the debate indicates plainly that those who favored this resolution are intent upon removing Messrs. Smith, Draper and Gersaud, not because they are unqualified, but to insist upon the senate's own selection of certain subordinates. Irrespective of the unique fitness of these commissioners for their positions and before they have given a single decision in respect to any power company, they are to be removed unless they are willing to accept employes not of their choosing.

"It is not only the right, but it is also the duty, of the commission under the law to appoint its own employes. It must assume the responsibility for the conduct of its office. The fitness of its subordinates for the fulfillment of their respective duties must be determined by the commissioners and no honorable men could accept such responsibilities upon any other terms.

"If the appointments of these commissioners are withdrawn, it is obvious that their successors must accept the senate's views of these subordinates.

"The resolution raises the question of the independence of the executive arm of the government in respect of the appointment and removal of executive officials. Many presidents have had to meet this particular encroachment upon the executive power in some form. Every one of them has repelled it and every president has handed on this authority unimpaired."

To make the matter thoroughly understandable, it may be said that something like twenty years ago congress authorized a commission to grant permits for water-power sites, the commission to be made up of three cabinet members. Because of many other duties, the members of the commission were forced to rely largely for matters of detail on their chief employes, the secretary, the chief accountant and the counsel. Bitter friction arose among the three. The law provides that the government, at the end of fifty years, may resume possession of such sites by making good to the companies operating them the sums properly expended on them, which requires that the commission keep a check on such improvements as are made. In the fights among the three, the secretary, rightly or wrongly, was accused by the other two of leaning toward the power companies in regard to what they might include under the head of proper expenditures. The chief accountant and the counsel, on the other hand, were held to be rigorous in their policies toward the power site grantees. It was this situation which led President Hoover to recommend a permanent power commission of five members. The necessary legislation was passed and the President named the men. It is now recalled that senators committed to government ownership made a point to ask if, were the commissioners confirmed, they would dismiss the secretary accused of leniency toward power interests, and they also asked the personal leaning of the nominees on the matter of government ownership or private operation. Finally the senate confirmed the five nominations. Immediately following their confirmation, the members of the commission discharged the secretary and, to start with a clean slate and avoid possibility of further friction, discharged the chief accountant and the counsel as well.

It is upon this action of the three members who were present and voted for the three discharges that the senate demanded the return to it of the nominations of the three commissioners and the subsequent making of the charge that the President leaned toward the power interests, developing a situation on which Mr. Hoover very evidently is glad to go before the jury of the American people.

Mr. Nye, the senatorial campaign expenses investigator from North Dakota, has announced his intention to offer a resolution declaring vacant the seat of Senator Davis, of Pennsylvania. If Gerald couldn't crowd into the spot-light in any other way, it's not beyond the possibilities that he might make a movement to unseat himself.

Taking advantage of the fact that a young wife waved farewell from their apartment window to her husband as he left for his day's work, members of the New York vice squad got her railroaded to prison, where she was confined for two days, despite the protests of her neighbors that she was a perfectly respectable woman, before her husband was able to raise a bond for her release. The New York magistrates' courts have become a stench in the nostrils of decency.

AN AMERICAN STEAMSHIP MERGER.

With the merger of the International Mercantile Marine and the Roosevelt Steamship company a long step forward has been taken in the development of transatlantic traffic under the American flag. The former, to be sure, includes a large amount of foreign tonnage, which may eventually have to be disposed of. It has already turned over the White Star line to the Royal Mail, though the Atlantic Transport, Red Star and Leyland lines remain. But the Panama-Pacific, with three new large passenger ships, represents an auspicious enlargement of its American tonnage. The Roosevelt line, which also operates the American Pioneer line, has a large number of cargo vessels, and controls as well the new Baltimore Mail line, which is about to begin a passenger service between Baltimore and Hamburg. The new combination is a powerful one, with many possibilities in the way of playing a large part in both passenger and cargo traffic.

The I. M. M. was a conception of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, who hoped to obtain a monopoly of passenger traffic between American and English ports. The completion of his scheme was blocked by his failure to include the Cunard. The British government bestirred itself at this attempt to remove the Cunard from British control, and granted the company a huge subsidy for building the Lusitania and Mauretania. It does not appear that Mr. Morgan had any great concern for displaying the American flag. The British ships taken into the I. M. M. continued to fly the British flag. American registry would have made their operation more costly. Besides, special enactment by congress would have been required.

The man to whom the greatest credit for American participation on a large scale in the transatlantic passenger traffic belongs was the late Clement A. Griscom of this city. He founded the American line with a fleet that was soon to be of insufficient tonnage to meet foreign competition. But the American line absorbed the British Inman line and obtained two of the finest ships of that day, the City of New York and the City of Paris. By act of congress these were transferred to the American flag upon condition that two new ships should be built in American yards. The City of New York became the New York and the City of Paris the Philadelphia, to which the St. Paul and St. Louis were soon added. They had a long and successful career, which included service in the Spanish-American war, but they finally had to go the way of all good ships, and the American line is represented now by a single American-built ship, the Minnekahda, the "tourist third" unit of the Atlantic Transport fleet.

The plans of the new company are naturally not matured; even the question of getting rid of its British tonnage has not yet been considered. The merger suggests possibilities of keen competition for passenger traffic with the United States lines, though that is not at present feasible. But the rapid development of the cargo business under the American flag is a matter of great importance to our commercial prosperity. It will go far to give the American merchant marine a place on the high seas befitting national interests. And a great company can hold its place in a highly-competitive business much more easily than a number of small ones such as we have, except for the United States lines, at present.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Refueling Steamboats on the Ohio.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Recently a story was printed detailing the manner in which steamboats operating on the Ohio in the early days were fuelled on the way. The people who furnished fuel wood owned small boats which carried fuel out to the steamboats and accompanied them until the wood had been taken on board and were then cut loose. That seems to have been a practice only in use on the upper Ohio. At least Patrick Shirreff, who, in 1827, made a tour of America and wrote a story of his travels treats it as a custom peculiar to that river. He came up from New Orleans to Pittsburgh and refers to it as seen by him only on this river.

Those who have watched the shipping passing Detroit have noticed the manner in which mail and orders for the big freighters bound for the upper lakes are taken on board in the river from little rowboats which for the time are dextrously fastened to the freighter's side, there being no reduction in the speed of the big vessels for this purpose, not a minute being lost. The little boat is then cast off and rowed back to its tender, a steam launch, which has lazily followed it in the meantime.

The following from Shirreff's book can not be read by one who has seen this operation without having it recalled to him.

"The wood for these vessels, going up this part of the Ohio, from Cincinnati, is placed in boats held to the side of the steamboats, so that the wood is got into the boats while proceeding on the voyage. As soon as the wood is taken out of the wood boat, the craft is set at liberty and the current carried it back home."

Poor Walking Posture.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Primitive people who go about barefooted or wear sandals never complain of weak feet. On the other hand, the most common complaint of civilized life is weak feet, or as the trouble is commonly called, "flat feet."

Flat feet are the result of poor development of the muscles of the feet and legs. Some persons are born with weak feet, but poor posture in walking and the wearing of improper shoes are the most important causative factors. Work that necessitates standing continuously on hard floors and pavements are other causes.

Stout people are more likely to have weak feet than thin people. They carry more weight and this places a greater burden on the arches.

The treatment of weak feet consists essentially in the proper development of the muscles of the feet and legs. To this end proper posture in walking and the use of sensible footwear are of great importance.

A flat foot is a weak foot, one in which the muscles have thoroughly relaxed. As a result of this relaxation the normal arch of the foot is no longer maintained. This change from the normal brings on pain in the foot, and frequently this is very severe. The pain may not be confined to the foot, it may be left up the back of the leg.

People with flat feet can not stand for any length of time. Walking is an effort, and they are only happy when they can be off their feet.

Heredity seems to play a role in this condition. Certainly it is not uncommon for flat feet to involve several members of the same family.

Have you ever examined your children's feet to see whether they have good arches and are not flat-footed? If the feet are not as they should be, and show signs of strain, now is the time for correction. Special care as to exercise of the feet and the proper selection of shoes will do much to prevent future trouble.

In children, as well as in adults, exercise for the feet is simple and beneficial. While sitting on the edge of the bed try to grasp or hold a lead pencil with the toes. Then turn the toes so as to be able to see the sole of the foot. Bend the toes downward toward the floor and back again. Now lie on your back and, with your feet in the air, turn the ankle upward, and bend the toes toward the knee and back again.

These exercises are to be done for ten minutes twice a day. The best times are preferably upon arising in the morning and in the evening when retiring.

Tight shoes cause the muscles of the foot to become weak. It can not be made too clear that proper shoes are essential for everybody. The shoe should be of simple design, broad in the toes and straight on the inner side. The shoe should fit snugly in the arch and loosely at the ties.

Posture is important in the correction and prevention of flat feet. Slouching leads to turning out of the feet, and this causes strain and friction of the joints. The muscles supporting the movements of the joints are called upon to do more work than they should.

Walk with the head erect, chin and abdomen in, and back straight. In walking always carry the weight of the body on the balls of the feet.

Andree's Tragic Story.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Perhaps the chief lesson to be learned from Admiral Byrd's Antarctic expedition is the prime virtue of adequate advance preparation. No expedition into the Far North or the Far South was ever so completely, so richly equipped, for carrying out all the purposes of the expedition. Nothing of moment seems to have been overlooked or omitted.

An incomputable amount of knowledge yet remains to be massed about the Antarctic; but so far as Byrd's expedition is concerned, it is probably true that he accomplished all that he excepted to accomplish, and more even than he and his companions had even dared to hope.

The tragedy of Andree, which takes on something of a cosmic character, since the eyes of the world were focussed upon the daring hazard, is summed up in two phrases: Lack of knowledge, and lack of foresight. Andree was unware of the fact that, from his landing place, it was impossible for him and his companions to reach Franz Josef Land, since the polar current ran in such a way as to make arrival at his destination impossible.

Furthermore his pride and almost heroic obstinacy would not permit him to acknowledge publicly the inadequacy of his balloon for the purposes of the expedition. After the abandonment of the first projected flight, Dr. Nils Eckholm, one of the party, publicly announced that, in his judgment, the balloon would not remain in the air long enough to reach its destination.

He held sound view that the balloon should be frowned upon, not only as an instrument for penetrating the Far North, but also as the means for effecting a return flight. Regarding Andree's equipment for returning over the ice as inadequate, he declined to go on the second flight planned by Andree.

Another reason advanced by Eckholm, which showed his prophetic insight, was that the balloon would not stay up long enough. Both feats, regarding the collapse of the balloon and the inadequcy of the equipment for effecting the return journey, were confirmed.

Andree was a man of great force and energy. He was proud and deeply sensitive; and when he was forced to abandon his first projected flight, he was so stung by the criticism of public and press that he resolved, at all hazards, to make the attempt.

The balloon was known to have defects, but Andree was defiantly determined to carry out his original plans and refused money advanced by admirers and supporters to enable him to prepare a better balloon. He almost seems to have preferred failure with the old balloon to success with a new one.

It is an interesting fact that, while serving as janitor of the Swedish section at the Centennial exhibition of 1876 in Philadelphia, Andree learned the fundamentals of the aeronaut's art and science from an experienced air pilot named John Wise.

Andree's own balloon, which he later acquired, was named the Svea; and it was during experiments with this balloon that he conceived the idea of making a polar flight. He believed it would be possible, by the use of sails and of guide or drag ropes, to direct the balloon—giving it, in a measurable degree, the quality of a dirigible.

Thirty-three years ago, Andree and his two companions vanished into the Great North—the unknown region of mystery, of ice and snow. Recently the records and skeletons were discovered. It is one of the most moving and epic stories of Arctic exploration.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Jan. 10—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and a jar of guava jelly from "Ham" Guild's in far-away Papeeta, Tahiti, and I devoured most of it for breakfast, leaving only a spoonful for my wife, poor woman. Came also a cheery postcard from Bainbridge Oldfield in California.

So to my syndicate office to article my way for another three years of servitude. Out to Ray Long's to see trophies brought from Russia and Leon Gordon, the painter, there and others and much rag, tag and bobtail and thence walking through the park in the dusk.

In the evening to the "Crystal" room of the Ritz with my wife to the debut of W. R. Coe's attractive daughter, Natalie, and the colonial decorations as fetching as ever I saw. Home late and so little fatigued I turned out a day's toil with no effort soever.

• • •

The most infamous New York "fence"—the underworld term for thieves' cache—was Mother Mandlebaum's little dry goods store at Rivington and Clinton streets. She was a shrewd virago, who stood by crooks in adversity and drove sharp bargains with them in success. Finally trapped, she escaped to Canada through the wily machinations of Arthur Hummel, and died there in exile, worth a million.

• • •

Among crook names of Mother Mandelbaum's era were Sheeny Mike Kurtz, Sheeny Draper, Johnny Dobbs, George Leonidas Leslie, Sophie Lyons, Molly Holbrook, Black Lena, French Louise, Lizzie Lancie, Pollie Kind and Little Rosie.

• • •

Famous dives were The Allen's, Silver Dollar John's, The Haymarket, Billy McGlory and the "respectable vile house" known as Harry Hill's.

• • •

These flourished in the seventies. Edward Van Every has immortalized them in a captivating book called "The Sins of New York." It offers a culling of the files of that pink journalistic jamboree of its time—the Police Gazette.

• • •

Few publishers cut such a figure as the Police Gazette's publisher, Richard K. Fox. Out of a barber-shop throwaway, he built up a periodical circling the sphere, and made a fortune. Crudely edited and pictorialized, its contents are fascinating today. The cuts were of wood, stressing fast life of the time. Scandal writers "dished the dirt," but with a little more restraint than tabloids today. A scandal slinger of that day bore the pseudonym "Paul Prowler."

• • •

Personal nomination for the cleverest comedienne of the season—Hope Williams.

• • •

Miss Williams is a divorcee out of the social ranks, with a swaggering walk, a boy bob and an effortless sophistication. Hitherto she has been featured only in the drawing-room comedy. She lets fly such quips as: "It is best to be married in case of children." Supporting her are two favorites of yesteryear—Richard Carle and Marie Cahill, the former strangely enough, having grown portly and the latter surprisingly thin.

• • •

Another social jester enlivening the season is the irrepressible Vera Maxwell. She is a California girl, without traditional social background, who was "taken up" by Mrs. Oliver Belmont and became her boon companion. For the past five years Miss Maxwell has been the Dorothy Parker of gay parties in the American set in Paris and along the Riviera. She is often described as "fat, fair and frivolous."

• • •

It was Miss Maxwell who, upon meeting for the first time a tabloid-exploited Romeo in New York, archly inquired: "Glad to meet you. What's the chance for a scandal?"

• • •

And upon departing for the Yuletide in Norway and Sweden she was asked by ship reporters if she expected to go further north than those countries. "No further," she said. "I don't look so well on a reindeer."

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Jan. 12—In his office at the department of justice a tall, slender, slightly gray-haired, scholarly man of middle age is putting things in shape so he may leave for the Philippines.

George Charles Butte soon is to leave to become vice governor of the Philippines—a position which carries with it jurisdiction of education and health in the Islands.

It is the second time Dr. Butte has been sent as an official of this government to an insular posession. In 1925 he went to Porto Rico to serve as attorney general.

For three years he was charged with the entire administration of justice there. During this time he succeeded in placing the judiciary of Porto Rico on a high plane. Then he resigned.

A place was found for him in Washington as a special assistant to the attorney general of the United States. He leaves this post to become vice governor of the Philippines.

• • •

Dr. Butte's appointment was hailed here and in Manila with enthusiasm. The storm of criticism which followed appointment of Nicholas Roosevelt to the post and from which Roosevelt subsequently resigned, made the choice of vice governor one of importance.

Dr. Butte, an energetic man, speaks Spanish fluently and has a great knowledge of Spanish usages and customs.

He is known to be an advocate of colonial administration—that is, he holds experience and training in the needs of insular possessions are requisites in the selection of administrators.

His training in Porto Rico, which brought him into contact with all branches of the government, he thinks will stand him in good stead as vice governor of the Philippines.

• • •

One of the first things on this program when he reaches Manila is to spend much of his time in traveling through the Islands. He wants to acquaint himself through actual contact with the problems of education and sanitation. Dr. Butte was born in San Francisco fifty-three years ago. His father died at the age of nine and he went with his mother to live on a farm in Texas. He was educated at the University of Texas. After several years of study in Europe he returned to the United States as doctor of civil and canonical law from Heidelberg.

As dean of the law school of the University of Texas in 1924 Dr. Butte agreed to enter the gubernatorial race gainst Mrs. Miriam A. "Ma" Ferguson on the Republican ticket.

He was in Europe on vacation when he accepted the Republican nomination. Although his entry into the race meant that he severed relations with the university as well as probably meet certain defeat, he made the race and succeeded in rolling up vote beyond what any one had expected.

Channing had [illegible] gown and a [illegible] with it. If the effect was what he wanted and should strike Aileen's fancy, it would be the motif of the wardrobe she would need.

"See Kronberg off?" asked Jimmy.

"Yes. Don't let Aileen know anything, but Vivienne had better stay away from New York for the present."

"You mean he's going to start something?"

"I don't know just what to think. However, he's given me warning. He's the type that would. It gives his game more zest."

"He threatened—?"

"No! He's too smooth for that, Jimmy, what I'm wondsring is—was there any woman wearing a domino?"

"You mean that Viv—was stringing us?"

"I'd hate to think that — and, frankly, I won't. But if there was I don't think Kronberg had a chance to recognize her, and I fancy Kronberg suspects me of knowing more than I told the police—or him."

Aileen came out of her bedroom. From her silver slippers to the pearl and silver net that capped her red-gold hair she was a symphony of exotic fascination.

Her gown of Venetian motif suggested moonlit nights on the grand canal and the spacious ballroom of a doge's palace. The basque-like bodice and slashed, puffed sleeves were of silver and green brocade. Its lines accentuated the natural slimness of her waist, and her long, trailing skirt fell in heavy folds.

The mask itself gave the crowning touch of mystery. It was like a domino, just touching the top of her upper lip and concealing her cheeks and forehead. There was an exquisite subtlety in its faintly mocking expression. The flesh tints of the poreclain blended with the rosy pinkness of Aileen's own chin. As her lips parted in a smile, it was difficult to believe that she wore a mask. Yet no one could mistake it for anything else.

"Will I do?" she asked.

"It's a knock out!" Jimmy answered.

"Even as the artist,' Channing said, "I must say the effect is perfect. Now that we're all set, I'll telephone to Sherwood that we're ready for the next act."

"You mean my audition?" Aileen gasped. "Oh, Dwight—don't make it today! I'm almost—too happy—to try to sing. I—I've got to get used to this—so that I won't be self-conscious—"

"It won't be today," he promised. "I think its best that you shouldn't go to the studio—in that old black domino. And certainly it wouldn't be wise for you to be seen in the mask you're wearing now. No one must get a glimpse of that until our mysterious lady arrives in New York from Paris. Colonel Sherwood is going to send down a microphone and the U. B. C. engineers will rig up a wire from the studio right to this apartment."

"Oh, that's perfect!"

"When you sing," Channing explained, "there will be another wire connecting with Chicago. I've put up an idea to Sherwood, and he's already interested a western chemical firm, Emile Gluck et Cie. They're going to announce a new perfume over the radio. I suggested their naming it Parfum Masque—and engaging you as the star. If they like your voice, as they're bound to, they're ready to sign a contract."

"Dwight, you must have a magic wand!" Aileen enthused.

"When they talk of terms, you're to ask them $500 a night," said Jimmy. "That's not high for a 'mystery star,' and I'm sure you can get that figure, but at first it isn't wise to try to put over too much."

"Five hundred a night—for me. Why Klein was only to pay me—"

"Don't be foolish! They won't think you know what you're talking about if you mention less. As soon as the details are settled I'll get in touch with the steamship office. We'll want to pull our arrival stunt as quickly as we can."

The doorbell rang, and Jimmy returned with a telegram. Instantly Aileen was alarmed. "Oh, Jimmy, do you suppose that Viv—"

"Now isn't that like a woman?" asked Jimmy derisively. "Why not take a look?"

Aileen tore the envelope and handed it to Channing with a puzzled air.

"What does it mean?" she asked him. "And who's—whoever signed it?"

Jimmy looked over his shoulder as he read the message . . .

HEARTY CONGRATULATIONS ON YOUR LUCK WITH THE MASK STOP MAY YOU GET A LOT MORE PUBLICITY THAN YOU THOUGHT YOU WOULD.
ADRASTEIA.

"I don't know anybody—" Aileen faltered.

"Looks phoney to me," said Jimmy as he tried to puzzle it out. "Who in the duce is Adrasteia? Sounds more like a motto than a human being."

Channing was frankly annoyed. "If you remember your mythology, Adrasteia is another name for the goddess Nemesis — avenger of crime, punisher of arrogance — a rather unpleasant lady from whom there's supposed to be no escape."

Jimmy was thinking quickly. "You have to give a name and address when you send a telegram."

"Naturally," Channing said dryly. "I could think of any number to give at a telegraph window. There's nothing in these sentences a clerk would think unnatural — and besides we're not overly eager to show this to the police."

"You think—it's from Kronberg—or someone he had send it for him?" Aileen was at once suspicious.

"No. A thing of this sort isn't like him. Besides, Adrasteia is feminine. The wording of this is catty. Apparently there was a woman—in a mask, as Vivienne told us. Even if Kronberg doesn't know who she is, she recognized Vivienne. That's how she knows about Aileen. If she isn't a fool, she's clever. But she's giving away her hand by this. It's notice that if she needs to she'll try to pass the buck."

Jimmy whistled softly. "I'm going on a still-hunt for that goddess," he announced.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

SUNDAY. I bet everyone is good and tired of cold weather. I know I am. I know Banty's father and mother are. His mother busted the top out of the window when she shot at his father last night, and then we all got to sleep and it snowed and the wind blowed and there was a drift acrosst the dining room almost as high as the table, and right close to the bass burner. It was certainly cold. I am glad I don't have to sleep there any more.

Me and Jubilee got home in time to milk the cows and for me to get washed by my ant. If I ever get to be a pirut or a sailor I won't bring home a parrot or a monkey. I will bring home an ant eater.

They kept us in Sunday school even if it was cold. We kept our coats on and the super stood between us and the redhot stove, with his back to the stove. I know what I wish had happened. We sang about Greenland's icy mountains and India's coral strands where heathens bow down to wood and stone, and we would of liked to of been with the heathens, because it is so warm there they don't have to wear overcoats or anything.

After Sunday school we snuck a lot of wood into our yard from the brickyard acrosst the way and made a fire in our snow-house that we have had so long and couldn't use because it was too cold, but just as it was getting warmed up so we could stay in it the roof began to drip on us, so we all went to the barn to practice flips on the hay, and while we were flipping we heard a scream and I looked out of a knothole and there was my mother running toardst the snow house, and it was all caved in, and little bits of smoke were coming out of it, and in no time my grandfather and ant and father were out there digging in the snow house. We didn't dast to go out, but snuck out the back way with our slays and went to the hill. When I went home to dinner my mother asted me where I had been and I said down on the hill. They all laughed, but didn't say anything about the snow house. I was lucky I didn't get licked for not being in it.

Today was Monday. The teacher kept her coat on for quite a while and her nose was blue. She said she wasn't as miserble when she was on ambulance duty in France. We went down to the lake after school and a north wind blew the ice in till it crashed together and it was piled up higher than a house. We run all the way home and by that time we were so warm our coats were unbuttoned and my mother asted me if I was crazy. I wasn't. There are lots of times a fella's mother thinks he is crazy when he isn't.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Harry Underwood Suggests Measures to Protect the Children.

DESPITE Harry Underwood's gibing reference to "dirty work at the cross-roads," there was that in his keen eyes which told me that he realized something serious had happened to discompose me. I looked involuntarily at Junior and Roderick, playing happily with the electric trains, put away when they went with the Underwoods to their Summer Camp, but assembled and put into running shape by Dicky and my father, who had spent much of the preceding night upon it.

"They wouldn't hear a bombing aeroplane," Mr. Underwood murmured with a grin. "I've had all my time to myself since they caught sight of their trains. So I thought I'd look over this gymnasium stuff. Hank and Bill will be here day after tomorrow, won't they?"

"Yes, we expect them then," I answered with a tender thought for Dicky's older nephews, William and Henry Harrison, brothers of Mary Roderick. Because of the sudden nervous breakdown of Dicky's brother-in-law, Dr. Braithwaite, his wife, Harriet, had been compelled at Christmas time to send her three orphaned nephews to Dicky, with whom, after the tragic death of their sister, Elizabeth Harrison and her husband, she had been associated in the guardianship of the boys and their sister, Mary.

Mary had been with us for several years, and when we saw how happy Junior was with Roderick, despite their minor differences we decided to change Harriet's plan to send all three boys to preparatory school, and keep him with us. Henry and William, thrilled with the sense of high adventure, went to Worchester Academy at mid-years, and in June after a brief visit at the home of a school friend, they went directly to a wonderful study camp conducted in the hills of Vermont by masters of the old sterling and eminently democratic school which we had selected for their training.

"Never mind them, now," Mr. Underwood's kindly voice said, and I looked up at him gratefully.

"I haven't time now to tell you what it is," I said, "don't want to, until I am sure that Lillian is not where she will suspect anything wrong. But will you and Dicky see to it that you are with Marion and the two boys every minute they are out of the house until I can talk to you. Don't let them go out of the yard, either."

"I get you," he said, grim little lines settling around his mouth. "And I'll park Lil somewhere as soon as I can. She's pretty tired. But where's Marion?"

"Where's Marion?"

His voice was suddenly sharp with anxiety, and I realized afresh how deep was his love for his winsome stepdaughter, whose prejudice against him, and jealousy of her mother's care for him had been so hard a task to overcome, but which had been so thoroughly routed at last that few real fathers have more enthusiastic devotion than Marion gave to her "dad."

"She went upstairs with Mary," I said.

He drew a deep breath of relief. "Then she's parked for awhile," he said.

"Those two girls can do more visiting to the square inch than any two women I know, and that's saying something, with you and Lil in the offing."

He was trying to raise my spirits, but despite the subterfuge, I saw his keen anxiety, knew that he shared my apprehensions, and did not belittle them.

"But you'd better give the office to Mary," he went on, his heavy brows knitting slightly, "to keep Marion indoors until further notice. Of course, I don't know what all this is about, but I do know that you don't go up in the air without warrant, so I'm sure it's serious."

"It is," I told him soberly, "but I mustn't let Lil get a hint of it, therefore I can't do anything further until Katie has served the veranda tea and we get settled down from the homecoming."

"Don't worry!" He clapped a big friendly hand on my arm. "The Dicky bird and I will be strictly on the job, and I'll tip off Jim to keep a look out for any suspicious looking characters. You haven't told me there are any expected, but if you fear danger to the children, there must be somebody in the offing. By the way, don't you think you ought to let the Big Chief in on this?"

His voice held the affectionate, almost reverential note which I hear from everyone speaking of my father, Charles Spencer, who for years held so high a place in the diplomatic service, and under whom the Underwoods and Allen Drake, still high in the service, had worked during the World War.

"I want to," I said worriedly, "but he's getting old, Harry. I hate to worry him."

"He's worth any ten younger men who've gone into the service since he retired from active work," Mr. Underwood said. "And do you ever think you could keep these precautions we are taking from him? It's going to be hard enough to keep Lil out of it—don't think we can eventually. But you take my advice, gel, and let your old dad in on this at the first opportunity."

Acidity

Runs Down More Persons than all the Motor Cars in the World!

We are shocked to hear of the number of persons every day who are run down by motor cars. Yet a condition known as Acidity takes a far greater toll in human life and happiness.

When the stomach secretes too much acid it causes acid indigestion, with gas, sourness, and burning. It also sets up fermentation and putrefaction in the intestines, creating poisons which pull us down physically and mentally. A marvelous German development, called Magnesia Oxoids, corrects Acidity in the right way. Upon contact with the gastric juice, Magnesia Oxoids generate nascent or active oxygen. The oxygen stimulates the alkaline gastric mucus which keeps the acid in check; corrects intestinal fermentation and stimulates peristalsis or the natural movement of the bowels. All three effects are necessary and only Magnesia Oxoids supply them because it is the only magnesia product known to science which, when taken internally, releases oxygen to the system.

To see just how "acid" you are, make this test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxoids from Bradley's Drug Store or any other good druggist. Take two after each meal and see how much better you feel—how much more soundly you sleep and how much more energy you have. If after taking the contents of one bottle, the results don't more than amaze you, return the bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money promptly and in full. Adv.

CHURCH CAGE LOOP IN TRIPLE DEADLOCK

PRESBIES, CHRISTIANS IN VICTORIES TO TIE WITH WALDO QUINTET

Reformed Moves Up by Beating Baptists; Disputes Mar Contests.

Senior League Results

Presbyterian 26, Christian 2, 16.
Christian 1, 2, Prospect 0, (forfeit).
Reformed 25, Trinity 14.

WHEN the smoke of numerous disputes had cleared away from the Y. M. C. A. basketball court Saturday night the quintets representing the First Presbyterian and Central Christian churches were again deadlocked with the Waldo Lutherans for first place in the Senior Sunday school cage loop. Aside from the and one other change the teams will line up for action this week in almost the identical posts they held at this time a week ago. First Reformed got back in stride and took the supposedly stronger Trinity Baptist outfit under by a decisive score.

Presbies Win Easily

The fast moving Presbyterian five handed the third beating of the season to the Christian No. 2 outfit in the opening setto of the three game schedule, winning 26 to 16. The game was a rough and tumble affair, as were the others, the two teams having a total of 21 fouls charged against them.

The co-leaders of the circuit had little difficulty winning from the weaker Christian team, holding a lead through the contest. The

Y-INDUS FIVE WINS EASY CONTEST FROM COLUMBUS TEAM

Regulars on Bench Part of Game, While Subs Outclass Opponents.

Coasting along in easy fashion with second string players lotting the lineup most of the time the Shovel Y-Indus club rolled up a 33 to 17 victory Saturday night over the Central Evening High school of Columbus. The victory marked the eleventh win in seventeen starts this season for the local club. The game was played on the Shovel court. Columbus never threatened at any point in the game to give the locals any difficulty.

The Y club opened the hostilities with a fast offensive game which netted nine points before the invading five could hit the net for a single tally. The score at the first quarter stood 9-0 for the Y-Indus.

Easing up in the second period Marion allowed Columbus to collect two baskets and four foul goals for eight points before the half was completed.

The second half was easy for Marion although Columbus added nine points to bring its total score for the game to 17. Vic Gillis' scoring ace for the Marion team warmed the bench for one period along with several other of the first team.

Pollino, a guard showed best for the Columbus five. Marion had no outstanding player but worked well as a unit.

THE Marion baseball commission scores again!

A belated report has brought to the attention of this department the fact that the diamond rulers of the city recently donated the sum of $100 toward the relief of the needy and unfortunate children of the city of Marion. The money has been taken from the treasury of the baseball commission and used for the purchase of clothing for children.

Just what individual member of the board originated the highly commendable idea cannot be ascertained but it is understood that the other members of the group concurred unanimously in the opinion that no baseball player or diamond fan of the city would object to the use of the money for such a purpose.

The commission both as individual members and as a group, deserve credit for making such a step as this.

Score one home run for the commission. It is having men such as these on the commission that has enabled recreation baseball to gain such an unbreakable hold on the city of Marion!

Discord Flares in Y Cage Meet

Discord apparently is flaring within the ranks of the Y. M. C. A. Sunday school basketball circuit. Whether or not it is of such a serious nature as to jeporidize competition in the circuit is doubtful but at least it is of such a nature a special meeting of the basketball board of the Y has been called for tonight in an effort to iron out the difficulties.

Viewing the situation from the outside, but admittedly not having all the details at hand, it looks like various teams in the league are more interested in attempting to dictate to the referee than they are in playing basketball. The teams in question may have just cause for some grievance but on the surface at least it doesn't seem that way.

The difficulty apparently started over a ruling made by referee Marion Hinklin in a basketball game Saturday night on the Y floor between the Central Christian No. 1 team and the quintet representing Prospect. Prospect is one of the two out-of-town teams playing in the league. Waldo is the other.

The director of the cage circuit, F. O. Rudolph, stated today that all difficulties are expected to be ironed out at the meeting tonight in the Y. M. C. A.

SOUTHPAW FARMED OUT

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—Malcolm Moss, lefthanded pitcher, has been turned over to the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast league as part of the deal which brought Ed Baecht, a right hander, to the Chicago Cubs. Moss came to the Cubs from Louisville a year ago, but finished last season with Minneapolis, having gone to the Millers with Charlie Tolson, in exchange for George Kelly.

OLYMPIC PROSPECTS BRIGHTER NOW THAN IN FORMER YEARS

America in Good Position to Defend Laurels in 1932 Meet.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—With the Olympic games of 1932 only a year and a half away, America finds herself in a better position today to defend her athletic prestige than ever before. On the whole our track and field athletes, swimmers, wrestlers, boxers, gymnasts and weight lifters who are pointing toward the Olympics, are of a higher caliber than in past pre-Olympic years.

The splendid performances of such comparative newcomers in track and field as Paul Jessup, Walter Marty, Bert Belson, Lee Sentman, Tommy Warne, James Demeris, Harold Manning, Joseph McCluskey, Charlie Engle, Vic Williams, Russell Chapman and George Bullwinkle and such sterling new performers in swimming and divingas Helene Madison, Catherine Ames, Bernice Phelan, Maiola Kalilo, Al Schwartz and Bud Shields, none of whom was on the last Olympic team, indicate that they will all be outstanding candidates for the 1932 team. Practically the same condition prevails in the other sports.

CLASSY MATCHES ON MAT CARD TONIGHT

Pinkie Gardner To Clash with Frank Wolffe in Headline Bout.

BY KARL R. McELROY

WRESTLING fans will cut themselves a piece of cake here tonight when the first mat program of the season brings together four classy mixers in the two principal matches.

Although not all of participants in the card have appeared here in the past, they are all well known. Each has a reputation for putting the utmost in each appearance.

The main go will bring back to the local canvas "pinkie" Gardner of New York. Early last year Gardner appeared in one of the Shovel engagements and, although he did not appear as one of the knock-'em-down-drag-'m-out style of wrestlers, he proved to be mighty entertaining from the standpoint of fans.

Gardner is seeing a crack at the mid-west light heavyweight title which recently was placed around the waist of one Joe Banaski of Chicago. Under normal conditions Gardner is not hard to satisfy but at present he finds the location a bit unsatisfactory and is determined that the belt should start traveling.

He will meet Frank Wolffe. Wolffe, an Australian is almost as firmly convinced as Gardner that the belt should move. They are the two leading contenders for the championship and Banaski has promised to meet Gardner when the latter is able to show a decisive victory over Wolffe. With Wolffe adopting that only-over-my-dead-body technic, Gardner is expected to have some trouble in disposing of him tonight.

Appearing in the semi-final will be "Hardy" Kruskamp former Ohio State football star, and Frank Higgins of Louisville, Ky. Kruskamp puts up some thrilling exhibitions with his flying tackle holds.

Two preliminaries—one of them featuring Marion's heavyweight, Bing Flanagan—will precede the main matches.

PRINCIPALS READY TO SIGN FOR TITLE BOUT WITHIN SHORT TIME

All Obstacles to Heavyweight Battle Believed Removed, Place Not Certain.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—If fan observers have interpreted the signs correctly, all obstacles in the path of a heavyweight title match between Max Schmeling and Young Stribling have been cleared away and their managers are ready to sign.

Some of the more optimistic experts voiced the opinion today that the bout would be made within 24 hours.

Certainly there were definite indications that "Pa" Stribling, father-manager of the Macon heavyweight, and promoters of the Hearst milk fund were close to an agreement. Schmeling already is under contract to the milk fund and no trouble is anticipated from that quarter.

UPSETS MARK START OF BIG TEN CHASE

Illinois Virtually Eliminated from Race With Two Defeats to Date.

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—Ohio State and Chicago, a pair of upstarts in the Big Ten basketball race, will go out this week to prove their right as contenders, while Illinois will battle against virtual elimination from the title battle.

Illinois' situation is desperate, with two straight defeats, and tonight the Illini may find themselves out of the running altogether. Their task is a contest with Northwestern's powerful five and the dope favors the Wildcats, in view of their victory over Michigan Saturday night.

Ohio State, regarded as just one of the other teams in the league until it walloped Dr. Walter Meanwell's Wisconsin outfit, 29 to 19, will meet Indiana at Bloomington tonight. Purdue will invade Iowa and Wisconsin will tackle Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Chicago's second test will not occur until Saturday night when Minnesota comes to Bartlett gymnasium. The Maroons, pushed around by the conference during the past few seasons, committed the biggest upset of Saturday's schedule by trimming Indiana, 28 to 27, in an overtime affair at Bloomington.

Gentlemen:

"Spit" is a filthy word. So is the practice of spitting. More serious than any consideration of nicety, however, is the very grave danger of contamination carried in the mouth secretions.

Your attack on this evil in connection with your recent cigar advertising is an effective stroke which should do much to awaken the public to this peril.

I hope you do not abandon the attack. If my endorsement is of any value, please feel free to publish it in your campaign.

Sincerely yours,
J. C. Eldridge
HAMILTON COUNTY HEALTH DIRECTOR.

...one of 56 health officials from 56 different points approving Cremo's crusade against spit or spit-tipping.

Every smoker, every wife whose husband smokes cigars, should read Dr. Eldridge's letter.

"Who are the friends of 'Spit'?"

YOU MAY WELL ASK THIS QUESTION WHEN 56 IMPORTANT HEALTH OFFICIALS HAVE WRITTEN SO STRONGLY AGAINST THE EVILS OF SPIT OR SPIT-TIPPING.

Dr. Eldridge writes: "Your attack on this evil in connection with your recent cigar advertising is an effective stroke."

The war against spit is a crusade of decency. Join it...Smoke Certified Cremo—a really wonderful smoke—mild—mellow—nut-sweet! Every leaf entering the clean, sunny Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.
